Yup, it all makes sense! Thanks for the update -- I'll let you know if anything changes with my case, and I'll call you if we need you tomorrow.

Hi Cary-

It looks as though you will get lucky. I've heard back from the Northampton ADA and that case already pled, so that is not a problem anymore. As for Westfield, the defendant in that case (who also has a trial scheduled today in Westfield) decided at 4:15 yesterday that he wants to have an attorney instead of defending himself, so I know that there is going to be a motion to continue for today and probably tomorrow as well. I have requested from the VWA there to let me know as soon as she knows if the motion was allowed or not so I can figure out the rest of my court schedule for the next couple days. And I know that the case today in Westfield is the only one scheduled, so I am hopeful that I will know more early this morning. Is all that clear??? I hope so.

The only other case that I may have tomorrow is a Superior Court Case in Springfield (I was on call yesterday and am on call today, but there is a note on my desk saying that the ADA could schedule me for Wednesday, but I think that would be if the Westfield case does go today), but we should be able to work around that if necessary. I will let you know when I know what is going on.

-Sonja

Hi Sonja, My [REDACTED] case is still on for Wednesday as of now.

Tim is out on [REDACTED], returning tomorrow -- it looks like his case may have pled out a couple of weeks ago, but I'll let him confirm that tomorrow...

I just thought that I'd let you all know that I may have up to 4 district court cases scheduled for Wednesday, October 20, 2010, and that there is a decent chance of the case in Westfield actually going to trial (the defendant is defending himself, so a plea looks unlikely, though it also depends on what happens in his trial tomorrow). If there have been any changes in any of your cases, I would appreciate it if you would kindly tell me so I can try to figure what is really going to happen and where I need to be. Thanks.
